

Fortune Teller.....

.....is produced by the Aviation Preservation Society of Scotland.

APSS organises the volunteer assistance of its membership to the Museum of Flight, and conducts some restoration work of its own at the Museum. It has about 120 members, of whom 30 are active.

Opinions expressed in Fortune Teller are not necessarily those of the Editor, or the Society.

Comments, ideas, draft articles for publication, etc., are welcome, and should be sent to the Editor at :

Aviation Preservation Society of Scotland,
c/o Museum of Flight,
East Fortune Airfield,
North Berwick,
East Lothian, EH39 5LF.

APSS Membership enquiries should be made to the Membership Secretary at the same address.

Help and support from the Museum of Flight is gratefully acknowledged.

The Museum of Flight is part of the National Museums of Scotland. It has a web site:

www.scotwings.com

with much information about the Museum and its collection, together with a selection of outstanding photographs of aircraft.

The major Spitfire restoration project which the Museum is undertaking for the City of Glasgow, has a web site of its own :

www.visionon.com/spitfire

Contents.

	page
Editorial	1
The Sopwith What? By Jim Mattox	1
Sir Robert Watson Watt and Radar By Ian Beattie	5
East Fortune Operational Training Unit, 1945 By Donald McIntyre	7
Jumping with Excitement By Gordon Watson	10
Last of the Independents By Grant Newman	13
Station Stories By Bob Wilson	17
Feedback	18
Jim O'Donnell Honoured	19
APSS Photos	20
Firth of Forth Appreciation	20